Going Virtual

Women in Communications is Going Virtual!

Over the past number of months, the Women in Communications team have been working hard to ensure that you can have the full 'Women in Communications' experience in the 'new normal'. We are therefore delighted to announce that Women in Communications is going virtual!

All of our upcoming conferences will have a virtual option, for delegates wishing to attend the conference remotely. Please get in touch with conference.admin@dodsgroup.com <sup>[1]</sup> if you have any queries.

Key benefits of attending Women in Communications virtually:

- Attend keynotes and workshops as you would in person
- Enjoy a variety of on-demand materials and receive video recordings of all sessions after the event takes place
- View more sessions that ever before, enabling you to kick-start your professional development after a year of upheaval and change

About the virtual platform:

- The online event platform will enable you to customise your experience, explore on-demand supplementary materials, and take notes on the speaker slides during sessions.
- Since the platform is accessible via web browser rather than an app, it is compatible with most security systems.
- For more information about how to maximise your online event experience, you can find our top tips here [2].
